"Incense and Burnt Offerings are an Abomination unto Me."

THE seeds of ritualism, planted months since in the breast of the Episcopal Church, bloomed forth yesterday, on Easter Sunday, in all that luxuriance with which it strives to rival the Roman Catholic service. Originating, as it did, in a desire to minister to the senses, and not to the spirit, springing into life because of a craving for unnatural excitement in a worship which should be only spiritual, it now bids fair to rival, if not surpass, the pomp of the Church of Rome. While, however, in show it is rapidly verging towards the rites prescribed by the High Pontiff, yet it lacks the significance of the Roman service, and does not possess even the poor merit of being typical of things higher than that of mere earthly worship. The modern ritualistic service of the Episcopal Church is an unmeaning appeal to the sensuous part of our nature, a glare and glitter which will please the eye, with no deeper portend than is visible to every one, and the whole significance of which can be appreciated by the most ignorant persons, who watch with stupid wonder the performance of the spectacular exhibition. The smallest child who sings in his white robes can take in all its meaning, for its meaning is no deeper than that which the eye can see and the ear can hear. In this it is far inferior to the Romish service. There every group has a typical significance; every gorgeous vestment is but a symbol of some mystery of the faith; every intonation and chant is as significant as the sacrifices of the Mosiac dispensation. How incomparably inferior to this gradually perfected ritualism is the feeble imitation of those who have not the excuse of training and habit to offer as an apology for pomp and circumstance of religious devotion!

When, therefore, we see such a sight as was witnessed in most of our Episcopal churches yesterday, we cannot but lament the fall from the primal simplicity, and feel pity for the pastor who has to gain his people's attention through the white robes of his choristers, or the chants of "Amen" by the choir at the end of each of his prayers.

"The simplicity of ancient times," says the New York Independent, in an admirable article on the subject, "is thought to be out of keeping with the demands of the present age. The Saviour, who was born in a stable, and reared in a carpenter's shop, must be worshipped with all the appliances of secular magnificence. We are not content with the humble accommodations of the primitive disciples. They were fain to offer prayer, wherever two or three were gathered together in the name of the Lord, without any yearning desire for pompous ceremonials. A large upper room was deemed a fit temple for the service of praise. The reality of redemption by the Son of God took the place of the slaying of goats and bullocks; and the epiph, the dazzling breast-plate, and the shining robes of the priest, were eclipsed by the ornament, so precious in the Lord's sight, of a meek and quiet spirit. But with the increase of wealth and prosperity Jesurism waxed fat and kicked. The craving for scenic excitement revived in the hearts of the worshippers, and the rites of the Pagan were transferred to the communion of the Christian. At length they blossomed forth, with full luxuriance, in the elaborate ceremonies of the Catholic Church. A reaction was introduced by the Protestant Reformation; but a new reaction is now on foot, which seeks to bring back the ritual of the middle ages to the worship of the nineteenth century."

How far this reaction has progressed, can be attested by the hundreds who visited any of our High Church Episcopal ceremonies yesterday. We find half the beauty of the form of prayer cast off. We find half of that which secured for the Episcopal service the merit of being the most beautiful of prayers removed by these innovations. In one of these churches we found the altar covered with flowers, and a cross erected on the middle of the altar. On each side of the cross burned rows of wax candles, which were lighted at the commencement of the service by a figure in robes resembling an acolyte. From the seats for the clergy within the chancel were extended a row of stalls filled with men and boys in white surplices. In front of the organ sat the organist, also in robes. The service commenced with a chant, in which none of the congregation were expected to join. The usual form of prayer was said, save when the people at the end of each petition said "Amen," according to the prescribed form, the new rules made the choir chant "Amen," as though it was the orchestra and not the people who were assenting to the prayer. The Psalter was no longer recited by the minister, with responses from the people. The choir took the matter in hand, and saved any one the trouble of finding the psalm by singing it to an accompaniment which recalled rather to mind of the march in Norma. Whenever the name of Christ was mentioned, the more ritualistic of the worshippers bowed. And when the name of the "Father, Son, and Holy Ghost" occurred, the devotees bowed low for the Father, still lower for the Son, and came near striking with their foreheads the back of the pew in front of them, when the name of the Holy Ghost was reached.

No selections or hymns were sung in which the people could join. Voluntary and strange anthems, consisting of singing one word in a hundred different notes, and by a score of different voices, took the place of the song of praise, and the services ended with a benediction and a series of alarming bows.

Such is the form of ritualism. Such is the improvement which is to take the place of the earnest and unostentatious worship of other days. And yet these followers of this new notion of devotion pray that "from all pride, vainglory, and hypocrisy" the "good Lord will deliver them." We can see in it but a sign of lip-service, where the heart is cold. We can see in it an attempt to cover up backsliding and frivolity with an assumption of righteousness. Under this new formula, as the Independent says, the Church, which was intended as the home of weary souls, the nurse of many virtue, the gathering spot for the communion of saints, is converted into a scene for aesthetic display. Soft, seductive appeals to the imagination are made of more account than masculine reasonings on righteousness, temperance, and judgment to come.

Business on a Frontier Railroad. We alluded the other day to the completion of the Union Pacific Railway, Eastern Division, to Salina, a point fifty miles west of Fort Riley. A statement of the earnings of the road for the month of March is now before us, and its facts will be of interest to those of our citizens who are watching the development of this great central line, which connects so directly with our own city. The business for the month, we are told, was almost purely local, the bridge over the Republican river, near Fort Riley, having been swept away, and its rebuilding delayed by high water.

The gross earnings of the road for March were $94,000. The working expenses for the same time, including construction and equipment account, were $63,000. This shows a very favorable comparison with the working expenses of the oldest and best managed roads of the East.

The report for the present month will be still more interesting, the earnings for the first week having been $28,000.

This is a very favorable showing for a road in a country so new as is that portion of Kansas through which the main part of this road lies. It is of public interest, too, as showing how rapidly the building of railroads, even upon our extreme frontier, develops and builds up the country through which they pass. It will be but a few years until the magnificent valleys of the Kansas, the Blue, the Republican, the Saline, and the Smoky Hill will be filled with prosperous and enterprising settlers. And one advantage of this great central route over all others is the distance for which it passes through a section of country capable of dense settlement, and so able to furnish that great basis of profitable railway enterprises, a rich local traffic.

The whole country has an interest not only in the building of the Pacific Railroad, towards which it is contributing so bountifully, but also that the road, when built, shall be a successful and paying enterprise. The report of the present business of the Kansas line is a cheering indication of growth and development in that direction.

Ritualism in Court. It would seem that the question of Ritualism is about being brought to a crisis in Great Britain. The Bishop of London has signed "letters of request" to Dr. Lushington, the Dean of the Court of Arches, charging Rev. A. H. Mackonochie, incumbent of St. Albans, Holborn, London, with four offenses:—

- 1. The elevation and adoration of the Holy Elements.
- 2. The placing of lights on the communion table.
- 3. The use of incense.
- 4. The use of the mixed chalice.

The Bishop of London is backed by the Church Association, and the clergy of St. Albans by the English Church Union. Large sums of money are contributed by the members of these private associations. Dr. Stephens and Mr. Coleridge, Q. C., are retained to conduct the prosecution, and Sir R. Phillimore, Queen's Advocate, with Dr. Deane, are to manage the defense. The fact that the Bishop of London has signed "letters of request" to Dr. Lushington, indicates that the inferior ecclesiastical local tribunals have waived their jurisdiction in the matter, in order that at once the questions may come before the Court of Arches.

Although in this country it is impossible to bring the question to a decision before a civil court, for the termination of the suit we look with intense interest, as it is understood, unofficially, that should the court decide against ritualism, the Bishops of the various States will revoke the confirmation of the clergy who persist in the schism, and put them and their churches under the ban.

OFFICES VACANT.—Upon the adjournment of the Senate on Saturday there remained unfilled but one Internal Revenue office, the Collector of the Twelfth District, and but one Post Office in our State, that at Milton. Considering the difference in the views held by the President and the Senate on the qualifications for nominees, we think the result both surprising and gratifying. Probably the kindly views entertained by the Senate in regard to certain nominations were from a desire to get the session to an end and reach their homes. Whatever the cause, the country is well pleased with the result.

SENATOR COLE favors intervention on the part of the United States between France and Prussia. We are of the opinion that the good old doctrine of non-intervention in foreign affairs, laid down by Washington, still holds good. Should we offer to mediate, we would deserve the answer we would probably get—we would be advised to mind our own business.

THE FOREIGN DESPATCHES are evidently all stock-gambling canards. They contradict each other hourly, and we have no way of deciding whether war is imminent or not. Until files of foreign journals are received, we can only judge by the Consols and Rents, which, from their firmness, indicate prospects of an amicable settlement.

MEXICO.—All resolutions in the Senate looking towards intervention in Mexican affairs were laid on the table, that body being opposed to the expression of an opinion of one branch of the Legislature without the other and more popular branch having an opportunity to concur or disagree.

During the next month so many United States Senators have taken berths for Europe, that should there be necessity for a special session in July, it is probable that there would be no quorum of that body in the country.

A CURIOUS PRANK.—The actors at the Opéra Comique, in Paris, recently indulged in a curious freak. The "Rendezvous Bourgeois" was performed, the men taking the woman's parts, and vice versa. Capoul sacrificed his moustache for the nonce, and looked as effeminate as ever. Alphonse assumed the masculine attire.
